3

First, I will walk you through the financial results for FY2025.

Please turn to page 4.

FY2025 results were broadly in line with the revised forecast, with revenue increasing and income declining.

Revenue

Lower sales volume was offset by price revisions and improvements in product mix, resulting in higher revenue.

- In Japan, although sales volume declined, revenue increased due to price revisions and improved product mix.
- In APAC, while alcoholic RTD sales in Oceania contributed positively, revenue declined due to a decrease in sales volume in the beverage businesses in Vietnam and Thailand from the beginning of the fiscal year.
- Revenue increased in Europe, supported by steady sales of core brands mainly in the UK.

Operating income

Income declined due to higher costs and increased investment aimed at sustainable growth.

- In Japan, income declined due to higher production and inventory costs resulting from lower sales volume during the peak season.
- In APAC, income declined due to lower sales volume in the beverage businesses in Vietnam and Thailand, as well as the impact of additional marketing investments aimed at recovering performance.
- Impacted by higher company-wide project costs, including investments in new product development globally and organizational restructuring expenses to respond to changes in the business environment.

I will explain the key points of our FY2025 results.

Revenue increased year on year, while operating income declined. Overall, results were largely in line with the full-year forecast revised in the third quarter.

Revenue growth was mainly driven by price revisions and improvements in product mix, despite an overall decline in sales volume.

Operating income declined mainly due to higher production and inventory costs resulting from lower sales volume, as well as increased investment in new product development globally aimed at future growth.

In FY2025, we continued to advance initiatives aimed at growth, centered on the strategic themes set out in our medium-term management plan.

First, with respect to our core brands, we focused on the sustainable enhancement of brand value and the creation of new demand.

In Japan, products such as the BOSS Sekai no TEA series performed steadily, while Tokusui, the first water-category product under the Tokucha brand, successfully created new demand. In addition, marketing initiatives delivered positive results for V in APAC and Lucozade in the UK.

We also actively pursued the global expansion of our strategic categories. In particular, we commenced the manufacturing and sale of the alcoholic RTD beverage -196 in Australia.

Furthermore, in response to changes in the macroeconomic environment, especially in Thailand, we introduced new packaging and size offerings better aligned with consumer needs.

In addition, to drive the creation of new value, we have strengthened investment in new product development in the wellness care domain.

Next, I will explain our initiatives in strategic capital investment, DEI, and sustainability.

In FY2025, we continued to strengthen our foundations for growth while making strategic investments.

In the vending machine business, we are promoting structural transformation across the business as a whole. Within this context, the new cashless payment service Jihanpi has contributed to the expansion of customer touchpoints. Average sales per machine for vending machines equipped with Jihanpi are approximately 3% higher than those of non-equipped machines.

With regard to strengthening production capacity, we invested in plants both in Japan and overseas.

In particular, we established the Swanbank plant in Australia as a hybrid facility for both alcoholic and non-alcoholic beverages. This has enabled us to build a production system that reliably meeting demand and to ensure growth.

We are also continuing to promote initiatives related to DEI and sustainability toward achieving our 2030 targets.

Next, I will explain our initiatives to accelerate innovation.

In FY2026, by bringing together the Group's expertise, technologies, and resources—areas in which we have strong competitive advantages—we will take on major challenges aimed at developing new brands and new categories that will become the next pillars of growth.

In Japan, in the growing wellness care category, we plan to launch new brands in collaboration with well-recognized Suntory Group brands.

In Asia, we also plan to launch a new brand in the growing hydration category, leveraging technologies developed in Japan.

In addition, by utilizing Suntory's proprietary manufacturing capabilities, we will advance technological innovation that responds to changes in the environment and evolving needs.

Next, I will walk you through our initiatives aimed at the sustainable enhancement of brand value.

To date, we have continuously refined and expanded our long-selling brands in each market through core brands innovation.

In FY2026, we will continue to advance initiatives across these core brands, including updates to product formulations and the introduction of new packaging and size variations tailored to diverse consumer needs. Through these efforts, we aim to further strengthen our brand appeal.

With respect to strategic capital investment, we will support future brand growth by strengthening production and logistics capabilities and enhancing profitability through improved productivity.

At the Saraburi plant in Thailand, we will add new aseptic filling lines, which will begin full-scale operations from FY2026.

The expanded capacity will enable the in-house production of brands that were previously outsourced, contributing to improved profitability. Furthermore, by enabling the production of new categories, these initiatives are expected to contribute to the launch of new brands, while also improving quality control and enhancing operational flexibility.

For FY2025, the year-end dividend will be 60 yen per share, as previously forecast, resulting in an annual dividend of 120 yen per share. In addition, for FY2026, we plan to maintain an annual dividend of 120 yen per share, while continuing to target a dividend payout ratio of 40% or higher, consistent with FY2025.

With respect to ROE, we currently forecast 6.6% for FY2026 and aim to improve it through sustainable growth, targeting 9% by 2030.

From here on, segment descriptions will be on an organic basis, excluding non-recurring items, and on a currency neutral basis.

Revenue increased in Japan, decreased in Asia Pacific, and increased in Europe and the Americas.

As for segment profit, Japan and Asia Pacific experienced a decline, whereas Europe and the Americas reported an increase.

735.2 BN	0.5%	—	47.0 BN	-4.8%	—

- Beverage market sales volume was estimated at 97% of last year, while SBF marked 96% YoY. Due to price revisions, unfavorable weather in the peak season, and the rebound from increased stockpiling demand last year, results fell short of both the previous year and expectations.
- Revenue increased in line with expectations, driven by price revisions and an improved product mix, despite the decline in sales volume.
- Segment profit declined but exceeded expectations, reflecting lower sales volumes during the peak season and an associated increase in production and inventory costs, as well as higher raw material and logistics costs.

First, Japan.

Revenue was 735.2 billion yen. Segment profit was 47.0 billion yen.

- We estimate the sales volume in the beverage market was 3% down year on year, due to the impact of price revisions and unfavorable weather conditions in the peak season.
- SBF's sales volume was lower than last year and our expectations due to the same factors affecting the beverage market and the significant impact of the rebound from increased stockpiling demand last year.
- Revenue increased in line with expectations, despite the decline in sales volume, driven by price revisions and an improved product mix.
- Segment profit declined, reflecting the impact of lower sales volume in the peak season and an associated increase in production and inventory costs, as well as higher raw material and logistics costs. However, results exceeded our expectations, mainly as a result of effective cost management.

Please turn to page 19.

I would like to provide additional explanation regarding the increase/decrease in segment profit in Japan.

Segment profit was 47.0 billion yen, down 2.1 billion yen year on year.

- The impact of changes in sales volume was negative 11.7 billion yen, reflecting the effects of price revisions, unfavorable weather conditions during the peak season, and a rebound from increased stockpiling demand in the previous year.
- The impact of activities and mix improved profit by 26.3 billion yen. While higher production and inventory costs associated with lower sales volume had a negative effect, these were more than offset by the benefits of price revisions and improvements in product mix.
- Raw material and logistics costs worsened by 20.8 billion yen; however, these increases were largely absorbed through the effects of price revisions.
- Sales promotion and advertising expenses were down by 4.6 billion yen year on year due to appropriate cost management.

Asia Pacific.

Revenue was 394.1 billion yen. Segment profit was 45.0 billion yen.

- Revenue decreased due to a decline in sales volume in the beverage businesses in Vietnam and Thailand, despite higher sales volume in the beverage and alcoholic RTD businesses in Oceania and the steady performance of the health supplement business in Thailand.
- Segment profit decreased due to a decrease in revenue.
- The beverage businesses in Vietnam and Thailand continued to face weak consumption of the overall market from the beginning of the year.
- Revenue in the health supplement business declined due to restrictions on shipments to certain markets outside Thailand, despite solid sales volume of both BRAND'S Essence of Chicken and BRAND'S Bird's Nest in Thailand.
- Revenue increased in Oceania, supported by growth in the overall beverage market, with particularly strong momentum in the energy category and contributions from alcoholic RTD sales in Australia.

First, from FY2026, we will revise our segment structure in line with changes to our organizational structure.

The former Asia Pacific segment will be reclassified into two separate segments: Asia and Oceania.

With respect to the forecast by segment, we expect revenue and profit to increase across all segments.

In addition, as previously explained by Ms. Ono, we also expect higher company-wide project expenses aimed at accelerating innovation.

Japan.

For FY2026, we expect increases in both revenue and profit.

- Sales volume is projected to reach 101% year on year, exceeding the market level assumed by SBF.
- Revenue is expected to increase, driven by higher sales volume and the effects of FY2025 price revisions.
- Segment profit is expected to increase, supported by revenue growth, despite the anticipated impact of higher raw material and logistics costs.
- In addition to strengthening core brands, we will make proactive marketing investments to roll out wellness care products and develop new brands.

I would like to provide additional explanation regarding segment profit in Japan.

Segment profit is forecast at 49.0 billion yen, up 2.0 billion yen year on year.

- The impact of changes in sales volume is expected to improve profit by 4.4 billion yen, due to expected higher sales volume, despite the impact of FY2025 price revisions.
- The impact of activities and mix is expected to improve profit by 28.9 billion yen, reflecting cost improvements mainly driven by price revisions and mix improvement.
- Raw material and logistics costs are expected to deteriorate by 21.4 billion yen, reflecting further increases in the prices of raw materials such as coffee and green tea, as well as higher logistics costs.
- Sales promotion and advertising expenses are expected to increase by 7.2 billion yen year on year, reflecting proactive marketing investments to strengthen our core and new brands.
- Other primarily reflects higher personnel expenses associated with inflation.

Next, I will discuss Europe and Asia.

For Europe, we expect both revenue and profit to increase.

- Oasis and Orangina, which underwent product reformulation last year as part of our core brand innovation, will be supported by full-scale promotional activities aimed at restoring sales volume.
- In the UK, we will seek further growth through expansion of the strong-performing Lucozade Sport, while also improving production efficiency, which had been our challenge.
- In Spain, we will expand our portfolio through the launch of new products.

For Asia, we expect revenue to increase, while segment profit is projected to be broadly in line with the previous year.

- In Vietnam, we will strengthen marketing activities for PepsiCo brands and reinforce new product development.
- In Thailand's beverage business, we will further reinforce our core PepsiCo products while also expanding our portfolio.
- In the health supplement business, in addition to strengthening core brands, we will enhance new product development aimed at creating new demand.

Next, I will discuss Oceania and the Americas.

For Oceania, we expect both revenue and profit to increase, driven by further strengthening of competitiveness in the energy category, together with the full-year contribution of alcoholic RTD beverages and the launch of their sales in New Zealand.

We will also work to stabilize operations at the new Swanbank plant in Australia and pursue improvements in productivity.

For the Americas, revenue growth is expected, supported by the full-year contribution of new products launched at the end of last year in the functional carbonated beverage and energy categories, as well as the further expansion of sales of the existing brands.

Segment profit is expected to continue to be impacted by a reduced handling of certain products in the water category; however, we will take measures such as improving operational efficiency.

That concludes my presentation.
